Sharon Shoosmith wins her appeal over being sacked by council after Peter Connelly's death

By Lucy Purdy

FORMER Haringey children's services boss Sharon Shoosmith said she was "over the moon" to have won an appeal against the ruling that her sacking after Baby Peter's death was lawful.

The former children's services director said the sorrow of Baby Peter's death would stay with her for the rest of her life but admitted she was "thrilled" at last Friday's decision.

She was sacked from Haringey Council three years ago amid a public outcry at the death of the 17-month-old in a house in Penshurst Road, Tottenham. Court of Appeal judges allowed Ms Shoosmith's challenge against a High Court ruling that had cleared then children's secretary Ed Balls and the council of acting unlawfully.

Ms Shoosmith had first heard of her dismissal when Mr Balls announced it during a live press conference on television. Her lawyers said the 58-year-old was victim of a "flagrant breach of natural justice" and that she had been driven out of the £133,000-a-year post due to political pressure and a media witchhunt.

Speaking outside the court, Ms Shoosmith said: "I'm over the moon. Absolutely thrilled. I'm relieved to have won my appeal and for recognition I was treated unfairly and unlawfully. Baby Peter's death will stay with me for the rest of my life but, as the judges have said, making a public sacrifice will not prevent further tragedies."

Ms Shoosmith's appeal against watchdog Ofsted was dismissed. She was sacked in December 2008 after Peter was found dead in August 2007 with more than 50 injuries. Signs of abuse were missed by health professionals in the months before his death. A case review found that social workers, doctors, police and lawyers all played a part in the tragedy.

The Department For Education said it will apply for permission to appeal against the ruling to the Supreme Court. Compensation for Ms Shoosmith is estimated to be £500,000 to £2.5m.

Parkinson's sufferer Hits back at cost cut

By Lucy Purdy

A MAN from Haringey who has Parkinson's disease has described how hard he will be hit by the government's cuts to disability benefits.

Adrian Williams, 61, from Tottenham, was among 8,000 who travelled to Westminster on May 11 to attend the Hardest Hit march and lobby to make a stand against the government's changes.

He told the Advertiser that he felt "very passionately" about attending the march and explained why.

"It seems the government is intent on saving billions of pounds on benefits, no matter what the cost to people with serious conditions, such as me," he said.

"All the care allowances together provide less than half of the true cost of obtaining full-time professional care, so I already struggle to finance everyday things that others take for granted. Every five pounds taken away from my benefits would be like taking a meal off the table for my family. I hope the government stops and listens to our needs."

The Hardest Hit coalition, which includes the charity Parkinson's UK, is calling on the government to scrap cuts to disability living allowance, a "vital benefit" that enables disabled people to live independently and ensure employment and support allowance, which replaces incapacity benefit, is fair and effective. The team also hope to reverse cuts to services that are essential to disabled people's quality of life, such as day care, transport and respite care.

Strong show: Adrian Williams is concerned about benefit cutbacks

Steve Ford, chief executive of Parkinson's UK, said: "We're concerned that people with conditions such as Parkinson's are being hit hardest by these cuts.

"The government needs to recognise Parkinson's is a serious, degenerative and fluctuating condition with complex needs. In many cases, their benefit payments are a genuine lifeline.

"We hope this march has sent a strong message to those in power."

A new lead in cold case of execution

DETECTIVES have launched a new bid to crack a 13-year-old "execution-style" murder which they now believe is linked to an unsolved missing person inquiry.

In March 1998, self-employed jeweller Gilbert Wynter, 37, disappeared from Haringey and, eight months later, Saul Nahome was shot dead in Finchley. They now believe that the two unsolved cases are almost certainly linked.

Mr Nahome was shot several times in the back by a man wearing a balaclava after returning home on November 27, 1998. He died 30 yards from his house. The shooter then walked back to the top of Arden Road and got on to a J-reg 125cc black motorcycle with a yellow stripe. The bike was never recovered. Police believed Mr Nahome's murder was planned and described it as an "execution-style killing" after the gunman was said to have calmly walked away.

Due to a head injury, Mr Wynter suffered from slight memory loss. He was black, 5ft 11in, of muscular build with short-cropped hair.

Call the incident room on 020 8721 4054.

Birthday present for Bob Dylan? Freedom of the borough

HARINGEY Trades Council has called for Bob Dylan to be given the freedom of the borough of Haringey to mark his 70th birthday.

The shout went up as the American singer and songwriter celebrated his birthday last week, after more than five decades in the music industry.

Dylan had a lifelong association with Haringey through Eurhythmic guitarist Dave Stewart – the pair recorded together in Crouch End – and was reputed to be relocating there at one stage.

Haringey TUC chairman Keith Flett said: "We will all have different dates for when Dylan finally 'sold out' but as his memoirs, Chronicles, make clear he is a lifelong trade unionist. Giving him freedom of the borough on his 70th birthday would be a nice and timely way to mark his long-standing links with Haringey."

His songs 'Blowin' In The Wind' and 'The Times They Are A-Changin'' became anthems of the civil rights and anti-war movements in the US.

Dylan will return to Haringey later this month for Irish music festival London

Feis in Finsbury Park. He will perform alongside Northern Irish singer Van Morrison and newly reformed Irish rock band The Cranberries in the park on June 18 and 19. It will be his only UK appearance this year in a coup for veteran festival organiser Vince Power.

Other acts that are confirmed are Christy Moore with Declan Sinnott, Imelda May, The Waterboys, The Undertones, The Saw Doctors, Clannad, Horslips, Nanci Griffith, Shane MacGowan, Afro Celt Sound System, Sharon Shannon Big Band, Frankie Gavin & De Dannan and The Fureys.

Pointing a lens into a protester movement fit for the internet age

A MAVERICK group of film-makers will find out today whether they have obtained backing for a documentary on the student protest movement.

The funding campaign, organised through indie creative website IndieGoGo, hopes to have raised the $10,000 to get their film made.

Isis Thompson from Hornsey, Srdjan Keca and Ludovica Fales working as Kitchen Sink Collective have been documenting the movement for just under a year, following the University College London's (UCL) occupation group's rise to prominence and the social networking techniques used by activists to raise media awareness.

Rather than go to traditional investors, the film-makers

By
*Kristian

decided that it would be apt, given the focus their film is on social networking, to back their film through a social, Web 2.0 venture: namely a fundraising campaign through independent project website, IndieGoGo.

This is an American site which allows independent creatives to fund their projects through the donations of strangers. It exists to fund these sorts of creative initiatives, allowing people such as Isis to seek backing from the public.

So far the campaign has secured $2,853 (approximately £1,739) of private investors' money, leaving more than $7,970 (£4,842) to raise.

Isis doesn't think fundraising will be a problem, though.

"We're fairly nervous," she said, "however, it's a good project with a tight-knit community attached to it, so we should be able to bring it together."

It is this kind of optimism that has led the team to eschew traditional funding techniques. They plan to secure an initial $10,000 (£6,096) exclusively from IndieGoGo, use the money to form a rough cut of the film and then take that to the Sheffield Film Festival in order to obtain investment for the final cut.

The finished version will then be screened around the country later this year to coincide with the new academic year and, importantly, the introduction of increased tuition fees.

The anti-tuition fees/cuts movement is renowned for skilled media manipulation and technological innovation. The development of Sukey in particular – an app created by UCL students that allows users to track police movements in real time – was key to the protesters' activities and forms a large focal point to the film.

Featuring a variety of groups from the protest movement, predominantly the UCL occupation group but also UK Uncut and the NHS Direct Action group, the documentary seeks to dispel the myths surrounding the direct action movement perpetuated by the mainstream media.

"Because there's no key figurehead sometimes the media can demonise the movement," said Isis.

"It's all too easy to make people feel that these people are scary student protesters rather than people who believe strongly in something and are trying to do something about it.

"We are also very keen to protect our subjects. For example, one of the characters in the film was struck by a policeman's shield during the March 26 protests. He ended up needing stitches as a result of the attack.

Innovative filming : Ludovica Fales, Isis Thompson and Srdjan Keca form Kitchen Sink Collective

Luckily we caught it all on camera. If there are any injustices and we can provide evidence then we will. We have something of a double purpose here: we want to tell the story but we are also there to protect our characters."

It is perhaps no surprise that the film-makers feel a duty of care to their subjects. After the death of Ian Tomlinson, pre-royal wedding raids, evictions and closures of social squats in the capital such as the the Social Centre Plus, there is a growing feeling within the activist movement that the police are bending the law to clamp down on protesters. Isis is undeterred though. There is, she says, "momentum" to the movement, and no amount of police crack-downs will stop that.

□ The Real Social Network will be released later this year through Quark Films.

In the groove: Highgate Wood School pupils

Dance students show their moves after free lessons

PUPILS from Haringey limbered up at Northumberland Park School in Tottenham to take part in a free dance programme.

Students from Highgate Wood School and Gladesmore Community School joined young people at the school in Trulock Road on May 24 for the annual Step Into Dance event.

Throughout the school year more than 3,500 students from 150 secondary schools in 18 London boroughs sweat their way toward perfecting their skills and honing their techniques in dance classes organised and delivered by the Step Into Dance programme. Free of charge, these classes are an opportunity for young people to experience the world of dance performance. They culminate in Step Live! 2011, a London showcase at Sadler's Wells which takes place on July 17. The scheme was launched by the Royal Academy Of Dance and funded by The Jack Petchey Foundation and includes ballroom, Bollywood, hip-hop, contemporary, flamenco, Latin and street styles.

Sue Goodman, Step Into Dance's artistic director, said: "I have seen talented individuals with an interest in dance and no formal training use Step Into Dance as a springboard to gain confidence and the tools they need to access a career in dance."

Right moves: Northumberland Park pupils

Founder Jack Petchey added: "Dance certainly helps students to develop physically – but also emotionally, as they grow in discipline, confidence and the ability to express themselves."

Thinking about university but worried about how much it costs?

Here are the facts

Changes to student finance are generating plenty of headlines, but many young people and their families are unsure what it actually means for them.

"Parents and students will have read many different things about the cost of going to university", says Lynne Condell, chair of the National Association of Student Money Advisers. "It is important that they can separate fact from fiction."

Here are five key things you need to know:

- 1) The changes will apply to all new students studying from 1 September 2012 onwards at institutions in England.
- 2) Just as now, most students will not have to pay for their university education upfront – because loans are available. For full-time students repayments only begin in the April after students have finished their study and start to earn more than £21,000. Full time students starting a three-year course in September 2012, will commence repayments in April 2016 at the earliest.
- 3) Some universities have announced that they plan to charge students £9,000 a year for their courses. Most universities offer discounts, living cost grants and scholarships for students from less privileged backgrounds – more information can be found on their websites.
- 4) Students need to eat, buy books and have a roof over their heads while they're at university. For full-time students there are loans to help towards your living costs. Most students will qualify for some living cost support.

If your household income is £25,000 or less, you can receive a non-repayable grant of up to £3,250. Students with household incomes of over £25,000 but not more than £42,600 can get a partial grant, with the actual amount depending upon income.

Students living away from home can apply for living cost loans, these go up to £5,500 a year (£7,675 a year if you're at a London university and living away from your parents home)

Additional financial support may also be available for students with disabilities, children or adult dependants.

- 5) Once you are due to repay and are earning more than £21,000, a monthly repayment will be automatically deducted from your salary at a rate of 9% of earnings above that threshold.

This table illustrates the sorts of repayments graduates will make:

Salary	Monthly repayment
£21,000	£0
£25,000	£30
£30,000	£67.50
£35,000	£105.00

No student's personal circumstances are the same, of course – and these facts are only a guide.

To find out how the changes will specifically affect you:

- contact the universities which offer the courses you're most interested in, look at their websites, and – best of all – visit them on an open day
- read the online information available at UCAS (which handles university admissions) and DirectGov (the most complete source of information available www.direct.gov/yourfuture)

- talk to the Student Money Advisers based in many colleges and universities. Find them on www.nasma.org.uk

So find out what you're entitled to and get some advice on how to make the most of your time at university. Visit direct.gov.uk/yourfuture

FUTURE STUDENTS

PAYING FOR UNIVERSITY IN 2012

Most students going to university from September 2012 won't have to pay up front. The cost can be covered by a loan supplied by the government.

Regardless of your household income and the course you choose, you only pay back your fees once you've left university and are earning over £21,000.

Financial support is available to help with living costs. Students may also qualify for a government grant, which doesn't need to be paid back.

So if you really want to go to university, you can make it a reality.

Postcards carries stamp of approval

POSTCARDS from the edge are being sent from Jacksons Lane over the next couple of months.

The first Postcards Festival is taking place boasting a festival of circus, cabaret and physical theatre running from next Wednesday to July 20.

Celebrating its vote of confidence from the Arts Council in the recent round of spending awards, the centre seems to be going from strength to strength with this specially tailored festival based round its three primary concerns.

Featuring triple bills, new commissions, site-specific and promenade performances it's described by artistic director Adrian Berry as a "thrilling programme". It starts with one of the triple-bills featuring Brighton's Zu Aerial performing Me Myself And You, Tamzen Moulding's acrobatic Inverted Dance and acclaimed aerialist Gisele Edwards, followed next Friday with a Postcards' Late Night Cabaret co-curated by Collectif and then... and celebrating all that's best in decadence and debauchery!

Sixteen nights of entertainment have been arranged featuring 18 different companies along with surprise guests and a colourful and suitably weird exhibition in the foyer full of 3D objects, masks and headless ballerinas! Keeping things simple all tickets are £10 while every show can be enjoyed for the bargain festival pass of £35.

● For more details, call Jacksons Lane in Archway Road, Highgate, on 020 8341 4421.

Saintly staff pave the way for a mood-lifting munch

The Gannets

St James, 4 Topsfield Parade, Middle Lane, Crouch End 020 8348 8348

GROUCHY, Grumpy and Grisly Gannets were in a pretty terrible mood when they entered St James.

The worst of the four letter words – work – had resulted in lots of squawking and flapping of feathers causing Grouchy to scowl and do an Anna Wintour by putting on her sunglasses and hiding behind them even though it had turned dark an hour ago; Grumpy to question the meaning of happiness, relationships, and whether a low carb diet was really much fun for her; and Grisly to accelerate his nicotine habit and start ranting down the phone.

Such an unholy trinity were not the best potential customers for this elegant restaurant in the heart of middle-class bohemia, so it's a great tribute to the staff that they emerged with a smile teasing their beaks a couple of hours later.

It boasts genuinely friendly staff which is not always the case in the eateries of N8. Jennifer was an absolute star and dealt with every request – no croutons on the Caesar salad; why on earth is it called St James? (It still remains a mystery) – with the patience of a pro... or a saint! While her colleague even returned a gracious little bow when I asked for the door to be shut cos Wintour was a little chilly.

So, the front of house helped soothe their furrowed brows, while the backroom boys and girls went to work on their famished stomachs. Seizing on the two-course set menu for £15.95 each (Mon to Thurs) we started with Caesar salads – croutons for one, without for the other – and soup of the day for Grisly.

The salads benefited from the excellent addition of a perfect poached egg on top while my rustic mushroom soup was served up with two rough-hewn hunks of bread.

A good start, causing Grumpy to forget flings for food and Grouchy to peer over her glasses for a second like a myopic mole popping out of his hole.

Friendly: Staff at St James went out of their way to help

Best, however, were the mains of minute steak (charged at an extra £2) with tossed green salad and hand-cut thin chips, chicken Milanese, and my own, scintillating seafood risotto. Like Jennifer Aniston's barnet the mains contained lots of highlights but special praise to the perfect blend of spicy tomato couli in Grisly's risotto and the melted mozzarella and plum tomatoes on top of Grumpy's chicken.

They helped ensure the terrible trio transformed into something more angelic than the little devils that entered.

● Opening hours: seven days a week, 10am-11pm.

TOM LOOKS TO BOUNCE BACK

By Dominique Stafford

TOM HUDDLESTONE has expressed his determination to put an injury-hit campaign behind him and play a major role for Tottenham Hotspur next season.

The England international midfielder had been an integral part of the Spurs side who finished fourth in 2009/10, but was restricted to just 21 appearances this time around after ankle surgery in November saw him ruled out for four months.

A further problem with the same ankle then brought his campaign to a premature conclusion, and Huddlestone has revealed his frustration at missing out on so many matches – including a number of their key games in the Champions League.

“It’s been very frustrating, especially with the size of the games that we’ve played and the ones I’ve missed,” he said. “But injuries happen and I’ve known for a couple of years that I would eventually need an operation on my ankle, so it was a case of when and not if.

“This season has been disappointing.

You want to better yourselves every year. We finished a few points behind where we were last season and we’ve scored fewer goals, which is also a disappointment.

“This season was a learning curve for us. We weren’t used to having to play massive games in the Champions League.

“Our main objective for next season has got to be to finish in the top four again. As Manchester City have shown, if you are consistent towards the end of the season then you might be able to finish in the top three.”

Meanwhile, Roman Pavlyuchenko believes that Spurs should set their sights on winning the Europa League next season.

Manager Harry Redknapp has hinted that he will field a number of younger players in the competition, but the striker feels that they have the ability to lift the trophy.

“Our club is quite able to win the Europa League next year,” he said. “We have a very good team, and we could still have reinforcements.”

Skolars secure first league win of the campaign

THE London Skolars brought an end to their wait for a first league win of the season in some style on Sunday as they romped to a 44-22 victory at home to Rochdale Hornets in Co-Operative Championship One.

The Skolars had drawn one and lost the other eight of their first nine matches, but they put that sorry run behind them to stun the third-placed Hornets and move five points clear of basement side Gateshead.

It was a record-breaking performance from Dylan Skee which laid the platform for their victory, scoring two tries and kicking eight goals to end up with a personal tally of 24 points – two more than the previous club record individual haul in the professional era which Ben Joyce had set five years earlier.

The Skolars had only led 18-10 at half-time, but pulled clear in the second period as head coach Joe Mbu was able to celebrate his first league win since taking charge over the winter.

Lamont Bryan also grabbed two tries for the victorious hosts, with Ade Adebisi, Austen Aggrey and Gareth Honor the other men to cross the line.

Andrew Saywell, Richard Merville, Craig Ashall and Scott Yates responded with tries for Rochdale, with Paul Crook adding three goals.

And a miserable day for the visitors was compounded when Merville was sent off just before the final whistle.

The London Skolars face a trip to Whitehaven on Sunday.
